SOCIETY PLAYS NATIONAL GAME

Metropolitan Club Goes Down to Defeat Before Chevy Chasers, Score 10 to 2.

MISSIS WILSON THERE

Lieut. Douglas Is Star in Battle that Develops Some Startling Plays.

After almost two hours of strenuous effort on the part of more than a score of Washington's representative society men to give the Metropolitan Club a national game, the Chevy Chase Club defeated the Metropolitan Club at American League Park yesterday morning by the score of 10 to 2. The game is played annually for the benefit of the free wards of Providence Hospital.

Society turned out in full force to witness the fun—which term is particularly appropriate. Friends of the players and members of the two clubs occupied the boxes, the sphere and minor seats. Miss Margaret Wilson was conspicuous spectator.

There was little rooting. The society folk were content to rest easily and not take the pitch seriously. After a few minutes of the game, the Chevy Chase Club, which enlivened the proceedings with music, would yell, "Take him out!" in disgust at some player who insisted upon taking his three allotted and ineffectual strikes.

The noise was on the players' bench. Chevy Chase won the game merely because it had a catcher who could catch, three pitchers who could pitch and several ball players who looked as if they had worn a baseball uniform before and could hit the ball.

There were some very creditable exhibitions, and there were some that were not so much so.

The fun began in the very first inning, when James Archibald, second baseman and captain extraordinary of the Chevy Chasers, with a runner on second, skipped over to his base to receive a throw from the pitcher. The ball refused to remain in the "Cap's" mit, and he eagerly pursued it into center field, while the base runner hiked around to third and started for home.

Archibald's Scheme Fails. Here Capt. Archibald devised a scheme whereby that feasting runner would be nailed at the plate. He picked up the sphere and hurried it out to Center Fielder Chase, with instructions to throw it home. But the scheme failed. Jay Carl Cashin, who umpired the battle, watched the play with interest.

The game, together with the money, was for the middle, started to serve them over for the winners. Nine of the twelve men who faced him in the four innings he worked succumbed by the strike relayed to the pitcher.

Capt. Archibald yanked his star twirler and substituted Myron Parker, who had been on first base.

The game was getting ready to throw up the sponge at just about the time the much-desired change occurred. Randall Hagner, the madcap backstop, returned to the bench after swinging his bat in the first inning.

"You can't hit them if you can't see 'em."

Besides pitching like a left leaguer, Lieut. Douglas sent Center Fielder Miles, of the Chevy Chase, and North Carolina, to right field, making second after a beautiful "hook slide." He was the class of the game.

Former Senator Dixon Lands as a Chautauqua Lecturer.

Former Senator Joseph M. Dixon of Montana, who disappeared from public attention after the last election and his retirement from the Senate, which followed, is about to reappear as a Chautauqua attraction. The bill boards soon will be proclaiming the forthcoming appearance of the only "Bull Moose" in Chautauqua captivity.

The former Senator is now at his home in Missoula. Some time ago the Chautauqua managers got their eyes on him. They asked him to submit a proposal for the season. He replied fixing the figures so high that he expected to silence them for all time. But to his surprise they accepted and are now printing his lithographs.

JURY SELECTED IN T. R.'S SUIT

Continuation of Hearing in Arlington Hotel Case Draws Crowd.

TWO BROKERS UPHELD

Blair's Attorney Argues that Archibald and Howard Are Entitled to Commission.

All day yesterday Chief Justice Harry M. Claiborn, of the District Supreme Court, listened to arguments in the case of William Conrad Hill and Arthur D. Addison against Woodbury Blair and the National Savings and Trust Company, in which the plaintiffs seek to recover $45,000 as commissions on the sale of the Arlington Hotel site. The arguments were not concluded when the court adjourned, and it will require several hours today to present the legal phases of the case.

James P. J. Archibald and George Howard claim that they succeeded in organizing the new Arlington Hotel Company, and that they are entitled to the commission for effecting the actual sale of the site of the new hotel.

The courtroom was well filled with interested spectators yesterday, and Attorneys A. S. Worthington and John W. Terkes, in their arguments for the plaintiffs, did not hesitate to charge unfairness and bad faith to their clients.

Attorney Frank J. Hogan, who is representing the claim of Archibald and Howard, denounced the charge of fraud, which has been frequently made during the ten days this case has been on trial, as unsupported by any evidence.

He challenged his opponents to make good their charges, and asserted that the evidence of the plaintiffs themselves flatly repudiated the charges made by their attorneys.

Darlington with Brokers. Attorney J. J. Darlington argued that Mr. Blair and the Trust Company were only liable to the persons who actually brought about the sale of the property. He joined with Mr. Hogan in the contention that the evidence showed that Archibald and Howard were entitled to the commission.

The Arlington Hotel site was sold in March, 1911, by the trustees of the Eustis estate for $1,600,000 cash. It has been brought out that the trustees agreed to pay Archibald a commission of 2 1/2 per cent, amounting to $40,000, for bringing about the sale, and that Archibald agreed to give George Howard two-thirds of this commission for assisting in getting up the syndicate to buy the property.

The controversy as to who is entitled to this commission seems to have arisen because all brokers trying to sell the old hotel site approached in their negotiations a leading New York hotel architect, Frank M. Andrews. The testimony showed that Mr. Andrews is the architect of the new hotel now being constructed.

FIRE MARSHAL PLAYS HERO, SAVING TERRIER

P. W. Nicholson Rescues Small Pet of Maj. Leitch in Lanier Place Fire.

Fire Marshal P. W. Nicholson played the role of a hero early yesterday morning at the fire which visited the Stafford Apartments on Lanier Place, when he saved from probable death the little terrier dog of Maj. D. J. Leitch.

Nicholson made a dash to the top floor of the burning building, where the firemen were working to find out if possible the origin of the blaze, and jumping and pulling through thick smoke found the canine almost drowned from the vast amount of water. He tucked the dog under his arm, found his way back to the ground floor and turned him over to his master.

Maj. Leitch was greatly worried for the safety of his little pet, and was happy when Nicholson turned him over safely.

The damage to the building was estimated at $5,000, and the loss to occupants about $5,000. The origin of the fire could not be learned. Up until the fire the building was thought to be fireproof.

The occupants of the apartments were forced to leave the building scantily attired, but were given shelter by neighbors.
